Raising “Good” Kids

I was recently asked to deliver a lecture for a group entitled, “How to Raise Good Kids.” Their first error was in assuming there’s a formula for raising good kids. Their second error was in assuming that raising good kids is my desire. My goal isn’t to raise good kids. My goal is to raise godly kids. And when it comes to doing that, I’m learning every single day, just as many of you are.

How do we raise godly kids in this culture is the real question I’m concerned with. How do we navigate through the mistruths, the fake news, the media saturation, the distractions, the immoral leaders and the disdain for faith in academia to raise godly, confident students founded in the truths of God’s Word?

I don’t have all the answers. But I do have one. You must be in the Word with them, consistently and purposefully. If you aren’t doing that, you are shooting at a target with your eyes closed. As parents, grandparents, guardians, etc., we will either accept that faith comes from hearing and hearing from the Word of God, or we might as well close our eyes, cross our fingers and hope for the best.

Central church of Christ

I'm so proud and encouraged by the number of men who have willingly stepped forward to preach in the interim during our search for a fulltime minister. Each one has done a great job of bringing a quality lesson each Sunday. Please be mindful how discouraging it can be to spend hours preparing and practicing a sermon and then not be supported with an audience. Often we end up missing the opportunity to make a favorable impression on visitors. Please be an encourager of each these men and show your support and appreciation for the effort they're putting forth. Thanks.

Our lives are not determined by what happens to us but by how we react to what happens, not by what life brings to us, but by the attitude that causes a chain reaction of positive thoughts, events and outcomes. It is a catalyst, a spark that creates extraordinary results.

Western Kentucky Youth Camp
